As there is no uniform grain direction, burls are quite stable when turned green and allowed to season. Burls often contain bark inclusions. Because there is no consistent alignment of wood fibers, the burl is gnarled and misshapen, producing figures of unpredictable colors and patterns. Burls offer an opportunity for turning a truly unique piece.

Maple Burl & Maple Caps

- White to tan in color
- Well figured burl to curly grain
- Works well on lathe

Myrtle Burl

- Light tan to dark brown in color
- Works well to lathe
- Suitable for carving

Walnut (Seasonal)

- Light brown to black in color
- Areas have darker and lighter colors
- Works great for highlights in paler wood tones

Madrone Burl (Seasonal)

- Orange to reddish color
- Tight even burl
- Easy to turn and cuts beautiful on the lathe
- Dries rapidly with a tendency to surface check
